

Article: Why looking after your corporate spaces is so important?

All year round your grounds face multiple challenges, whether its heavy snowfall and ice or whether it's the intense growth of grass, weeds and shrubbery taking effect from the summer. Whatever the weather brings, it is imperative that your company ensures your grounds are safe, maintained, looking their best and prepared for weather of all extremes.

Firstly, your grounds are constantly under the scrutiny of your staff, clients and visitors on a daily basis – this should be reason enough to ensure you keep immaculate standards. Your grounds can also reflect the strength of your brand, which goes without saying, is of high importance.

Through health and safety laws and regulations, it is the employer's responsibility to ensure that their grounds are safe to work on. Ensuring your grounds are regularly and carefully maintained will undoubtedly reduce risk of accidents. Companies may be financially sanctioned for not adhering to regulations, providing more reason as to why grounds maintenance is of imperative importance.

Research has suggested that quality green and open spaces can also have a huge impact on the staff's health and wellbeing; with links to stress reduction, improving creativity and cognitive thinking.
